DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1 and 3-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Webster (4848722).

Webster teaches a substrate 2 containing channel shaped recesses 20,22,80,94,95, a flexible polymer layer 8 there over, which can be flexed into the recess to control fluid flow there through and a layer 2 overlying the flexible layer. Refer to figures 2-6a and 14-23. Refer especially to figures 14-19 which show a continuous channel 80. Refer to 41, 24 showing a second recess in the overlying layer for instant claim 4.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 2 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Webster in view of Moles (5932799).

The primary reference teaches the invention substantially as recited except for the specific size of the channel (< 500 microns) in claim 31 and the layer in claim 2 being elastomeric. Webster is silent as to the size of the channels.

Moles teaches that channels 16,18,20,28 in fluid flow devices using flexible membranes to control fluid flow are typically in the range of 0.001 in – 0.015 in (25.5-381 microns). Refer to column 1, lines 64-67.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to Webster to form the channels of micron size, as taught by Moles, motivated by the fact both references are related to the same field of fluid flow devices and channels of the size recited are known in the art. It also would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to the primary references to form the layer overlying the flexible layer of an elastomer for the purpose of imparting the same properties thereto (i.e. to be flexible) since flexibility is desired in particular layers of a valve as shown by the references.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-5 and 31 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

6. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
